

Deuteronomy occurs within 1 Cor 5:1-11:1 as allusion (Deut 27:20 in 5:1; Deut 1:16 in 6:5; Deut 6:4 in 8:4, 6; Deut 20:6 in 9:7; Deut 32:17 in 10:20; Deut 32:21 in 10:22), quotation (Deut 17:7, parallels in 5:13; Deut 25:4 in 9:9), and echo (Deut 18:1, 3 in 9:13). In all, Paul uses Deuteronomy in 3 ways: (1) warrant for an argument or sanction (5:1; 5:13; 6:5; 8:4, 6; 9:4-18; 10:14-22); (2) illustration for the right of apostles to material support (9:7; 9:13); (3) basis of concepts or ideas that recall themes found in the context of Deuteronomy (exclusion and exodus; community preservation; wise judges as internal conflict arbitrators; future reality as motivation for present living; believer's love for God and God's initiative of redeeming the believer; rights of human and animal laborers to remuneration; covenant allegiance, idols as demons, and divine jealousy).

Imprints of Deuteronomy in 1 Corinthians

Edwin Perona

Deuteronomy in Paul's Paraenesis within 1 Corinthians 5:1 - 11:1

An Inquiry into Deuteronomy's Presence, Function, and Impact in 1 Corinthians

Edwin Perona (Ph.D., Trinity Evangelical Divinity School) is Associate Professor at TCA College School of Theology English in Singapore where he resides with his wife Ella. Their daughter Danielle teaches foreign languages in Manila. He taught New Testament, Biblical theology, Greek, and Hermeneutics previously in the Philippines and Indonesia.

978-3-659-81215-6

Perona

 LAMBERT
Academic Publishing